When Mark Thompson, then the controller of BBC2, told Esther Rantzen that he wanted her to become 'Britain's Oprah', she thought it strange. But that is more or less what she has become, although Vanessa Feltz might disagree. So, what does Esther think of the rival claimant to her title as queen of the daytime talk show? 'I ought to find an adjective not related to size, but really she is a big lady in every way. Basically my feeling about women on television is that we're a sisterhood. I recognise the tough bits, the criticism based on how we look. I was "toothy Esther Rantzen" long after my teeth withdrew.' Although she owns up to being competitive, Esther is unwilling to fuel impressions of rivalry between her and Vanessa. Incidentally, what is it about metropolitan Jewish women that leads to them becoming talk show hosts? Esther has considered the question before. 'Jewish family life teaches you about people,' she says. 'I was brought up surrounded by cousins and great aunts, aged nought to 90. Families bring us into close emotional contact with people.' Although she is smiling, 1998 was an annus horribilis: her husband suffered a heart attack and her own life was threatened with amoebic dysentery. Mercifully, she is better. For love her or loathe her, there is no doubt that television would not be the same without her. Esther, UK Horizons, weekdays 9.30am, 4.30pm

Dynasty is back on UK Gold, and very welcome it is too. Not a lot of people know that the part of Alexis Carrington was originally earmarked for Sophia Loren, but Joan Collins was preferred, having impressed executive producer Aaron Spelling with her role in The Bitch. The plot in Dynasty made even Dallas look like Crossroads. In 1985, Alexis's long-lost daughter Amanda surfaced to marry Prince Michael of Moldavia. Sadly, the wedding was marred by the arrival of Baader-Meinhof style terrorists who machine-gunned the guests. Still, what it lacked in realism, Dynasty made up for in glamour. Each episode had a budget of a million dollars, and to impress US audiences, English actresses were imported, like Kate O'Mara and Stephanie Beacham, as well as Collins. UK Gold, weekdays, 6.00pm

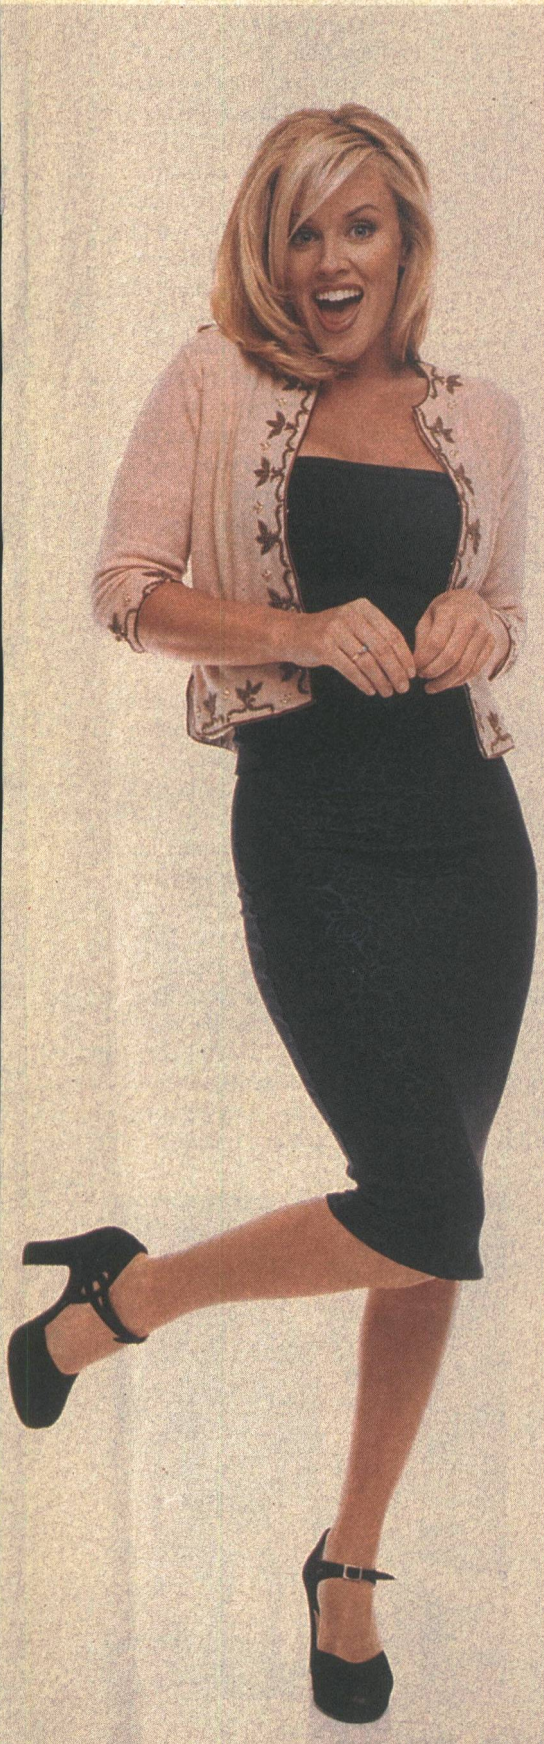
As a former mermaid who wound up being romanced in New York by Tom Hanks (in the film Splash), Daryl Hannah is well qualified to present a programme about the ways in which animals and humans rub shoulders. In Wildlife Wars, she travels through the western United States to learn whether wild animals and people can get along. With the suburbs expanding into areas that were once wilderness, bears, mountain lions, coyotes and wolves are sometimes found straying into residential areas, and in some parts, so-called bear dogs are specially trained to chase bears back into the woods. 'At first,' says Hannah, a native of Chicago, 'I was concerned that the bear dogs were harassing the bears, but I learned that they're actually saving the bears' lives. They just keep them away from the roads and away from the trash, and they keep them away from situations where the government agents would shoot them because of their two-strike or three-strike laws. That means that after two or three times of them appearing in these public places, they'd be shot.' Thanks to Wildlife Wars, Hannah reckons she is equipped to deal with a menacing bear. In fact she usefully points out that there are different ways to deal with black bears and grizzlies because of their contrasting personalities. So, when being confronted by a bear, make sure you check what breed it is before you act. National Geographic, Friday 5th, 9.00pm

with Esther and a taste on cable in February



Seven short years ago, Jenny McCarthy, the daughter of a steel-plant foreman from Chicago, was stuggling to raise funds to finance her nursing course at the University of Southern Illinois. The following year she sent photographs of herself to Playboy magazine and received $20,000 to be Miss October 1993. A few months later she was voted Playmate of the Year and moved to Los Angeles, where she landed a presenting job with MTV. She was an instant success, and felt secure enough to reject a fresh offer from Playboy, namely $500,000 to pose for more nude photos. Instead, they just reran the old ones. Meanwhile, McCarthy's career has blossomed. MTV created a sketch series, The Jenny McCarthy Show, and NBC devised a sitcom called Jenny, which makes its debut on the Paramount Comedy Channel this month. She plays the part of a New York grocery assistant whose life is transformed when she is left a house in Hollywood by the father she never knew, a B-movie actor called Guy Hathaway (played by the Man with the Tan, George Hamilton). Better still for Jenny, every time Guy utters more than three lines of dialogue in his films, Jenny gets royalties. Frustratingly, he never seems to get past three. Paramount Comedy Channel, starts Sunday 7th, 7.00pm

The countdown to the 71st Academy Awards begins this month with the unveiling of the nominations. Sky Movies has snapped up the live TV rights to the Oscars in a three-year deal, and will have brief coverage of the nominations announcement. Oscar fever doesn't really get going on Sky Cinema till March, when a different Oscar-winning film will be shown each night leading up to the ceremony on the 21st. These will include The Full Monty and LA Confidential. As for February, one of the big events is the screening of The Rat Pack, an acclaimed film about Frank Sinatra and his gang. The film got huge ratings when it was shown last August in America, and has a cast headed by Ray Liotta as Sinatra and Joe Mantegna as Dean Martin. Needless to say, the project angered the Sinatra family, notably Frank's daughter Tina. Even Liotta had qualms. 'I turned it down at first,' he says. 'I thought, "Sinatra, that's a lot to bite off."' Oscar Nominations, Sky Premier, Tuesday 9th, 7.45pm. The Rat Pack, Sky Premier, Sunday 7th, 9.00pm

Much as we Brits like to lay claim to Candid Camera, which began on ITV in 1960 with Bob Monkhouse as host, it was actually an American import, and started life as a radio show, Candid Microphone, in 1947. A year later it transferred to television, hosted by its creator, arch-prankster Allen Funt. Funt's son Peter is presenter of the latest series of Candid Camera, along with Suzanne Somers. Funt has an impeccable pedigree – he made his debut on his father's show at the age of three, posing as a shoeshine boy who horrified New Yorkers by charging $10 per shoe. The pranks may have changed since 1948, but their victims are no less gullible. In fact Funt reckons they are even more gullible. 'People today have 110 things on their mind,' he says. 'They're so overloaded that when we step in with our little joke, they're easier to fool than ever,' he says. Candid Camera, Challenge TV, weekdays 10.00pm

Pam calls the shots

After a troubled time in her private life, the 'Baywatch' babe is back in a new series, but this time she's in charge. Words: Ivan Waterman

NEW SERIES

FOR Pamela Anderson Lee, there is life only before and after her break-up with 'TL', her estranged wild rock star husband Tommy Lee.

A year ago, the couple had a violent argument at their home while she hugged their sons Brandon, two, and baby Dylan.

She called the police, the Motley Crue drummer went to jail and the brief, stormy marriage of the girl whose face and figure adorned every magazine cover from Carmel to Canberra finally bit the dust.

'It has been sad and very hard for me. For all of us,' says Pamela. 'I have to get on with things and look after the kids. I have to think about tomorrow. You have to move on.'

And with that in mind, the rejuvenated Baywatch icon is about to take another bow in her racy new TV series, VIP. She plays Vallery Irons, a smalltown girl who suddenly finds herself in charge of an elite professional bodyguard agency protecting the rich and famous in Southern California.

Irons was conceived by screenwriter JF Lawton, who wrote the movies Pretty Woman and Under Siege. He saw the character as a gun-toting, high-kicking heroine.

But the 31-year-old actress, troubled by her 'Pambo' action-woman image from Baywatch and the movie flop Barb Wire, wasn't happy. She went back to the drawing board with Lawton and re-created Vallery as a more down-to-earth character.

By day, she works at a hot dog stand. By night, she dreams of better things. Then, she dates a movie star and saves him from a stalker. VIP (Vallery Irons Protection) is born. The role, Pamela says, is much more than a showcase for her physical assets.

'That's why I am executive producer, to make sure I am playing the character I want to play. I can relate to Vallery.

'I wanted her to be more like a fish out of water, more like an everyday girl thrown into a life of glamour and prestige. That way she can be the audience's eyes when she is dealing with celebrities and the backstage stuff.

'She can solve problems in a common-sense way or even by some kind of fluke instead of karate chopping somebody or letting the bad guy get it with an automatic weapon.'

VIP has been snapped up in America, having been sold to more than 200 stations.

This new success comes at a turning point in Pamela's life. Her divorce from Tommy Lee is imminent and she says she now wants to lead a 'quieter life' with her children. 'This celebrity thing is a double-edged sword,' she says. 'But I'm not bitter about the way things panned out and I am going to try to remain the same. God doesn't give you anything you can't handle.'

'I will own up to anything. Almost!'

He won two Oscars for being mad, bad and daring and then, last year, at age 61, he scooped up another for his role as a cantankerous codger in As Good as It Gets. Garth Pearce chats to Tinseltown's wild one

As Good as It Gets from Wednesday 24th

JACK NICHOLSON knows about his bad boy reputation. When mention is made of it, he can hardly keep the smile from his lips, which curl to bare a perfect set of teeth. The mouth turns up at the corners, matching the shape of his eyes and brows, which seem to do the same.

Nicholson may be 61 and a grandfather, but he shows little sign of graceful maturity. He has been told a thousand times he looks like the Devil himself. He has played him, too, in The Witches of Eastwick and gave a devilish performance as a demented Joker in Batman.

'I have been described as all sorts of things,' he tells me laconically. 'And you know what? I take them all with a grain of salt. Someone in London said I was the oldest lad in town, whatever that meant. But if Jack the Lad is what they want, then they can have it. I will own up to anything. Almost.'

The most striking thing about Nicholson is that he doesn't seem to give a damn. He has been photographed dancing in nightclubs with girls in their early twenties. He's fallen victim to a few kiss-and-tell stories. His private life stretches behind him like a comet: full of fire and likely to come around again to haunt him. But there are no apologies for any of it. 'I have never been late on a film set and I arrive always knowing my lines,' he says. 'This is what I do for a living. The rest is out there for grabs. I used to be able to work ten or 12 hours straight and then stay up until four in the morning. These days I have to be a little careful. But if people think I am still that wild, then let them.'

His attention to detail at work has paid off. In a movie career stretching back 40 years – even in his debut, The Cry Baby Killer, he had the lead – he has won three Oscars and been nominated for a further eight. He was voted Best Actor in One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest (1975) and Best Supporting Actor in Terms of Endearment (1983). But it was his latest, in March 1998, for Best Actor in As Good as It Gets that seems his greatest triumph.

Nicholson was the bookmaker's favourite from the off. No one was given any hope against him, which seemed to mark not only the power of his performance but the fact that he is recognised by many as the biggest star in Hollywood.

In the film, he plays an acid-tongued novelist who very much prefers his own company and seems to have a particular loathing for a gay artist neighbour, played by Greg Kinnear. The only grudging warmth he shows is for a waitress, played by Helen Hunt – she won a Best Actress Oscar for her performance – who serves him daily at his favourite restaurant. Their friendship, which grows slowly into an uneasy romance, is the central theme of this comedy. 'The Oscars are fun and I wouldn't criticise the system, because it has been good to me,' observes Nicholson. 'But, when everyone was predicting a success for this one, I began to wonder. Comedy acting is never high on the agenda.'

The cornerstone of Nicholson's success is his versatility. He can deliver comedy and a wide range of emotions, from his dropout lawyer in Easy Rider, for which he won his first Oscar nomination in 1969, to performances in a golden collection such as Carnal Knowledge, The Shining, Chinatown, The Postman Always Rings Twice, Prizzi's Honor and A Few Good Men.

It seems appropriate that Nicholson has been able to fit in to any role. He lived a lie in his own life, without even knowing it. His real mother, June, moved back with her parents when Jack's alcoholic father left them before his birth. She then pretended to be his older sister, while her mother, Ethel, posed as mother to them both.

He did not find out the truth until the age of 32, by which time both women were dead. He went on record to remark: 'I feel gratitude to them, because a more comfortable alternative would probably have been an abortion. When I discovered the facts, I did not feel the need to go to a therapist to talk it all out.'

His own love life has been equally disjointed. He was married to actress Sandra Knight for five years until 1967. Jennifer, 33, his daughter from that marriage, has his only grandson, Sean, who is two. He also has two more children, Lorraine, eight, and Raymond, six, by 35-year-old former girlfriend Rebecca Broussard.

There was also a tempestuous 17-year marathon relationship with actress Anjelica Huston, 46, who since her own marriage to an architect has described Nicholson as being 'like a child'.

But it is the child in Jack Nicholson that he has been able to call upon to give unerring enthusiasm and energy, to still deliver the roles that are recognised as being among the best from any leading man during the last four decades of this century. 'I have always been open to what life has to offer,' he says. 'If anything, I am more open now than ever. That's got to be a good thing. Hasn't it?'

Your top movies

Millennium Movies is Britain's biggest ever film event and Lord Attenborough wants you to be a part of it!

EVERYONE has their favourite movies – those that they cherish, defend with passion and never tire of watching. Now Sky is giving you the chance to commemorate your top three films as part of the country's biggest ever movie poll, the patron of which is none other than that bastion of British cinema, Lord Attenborough.

'This celebration of films is all about the opinions of those who really matter – the audiences,' says Lord Attenborough, the star of such classics as Brighton Rock, 10 Rillington Place and Jurassic Park, and the director of Gandhi and Chaplin.

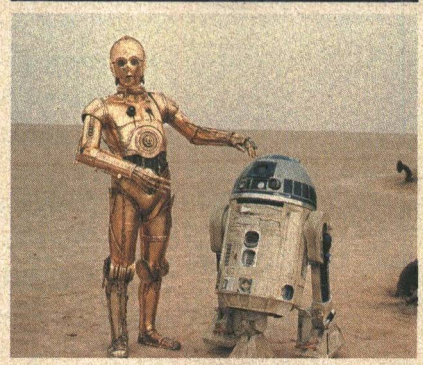
You have from now until the end of May to decide on your choices (see page 20 for details on how to register your vote and the 25,000 prizes on offer). Once all the entries are in, Sky will compile what will prove to be the definitive list of the country's favourite films.

You are not bound by any restrictions and you needn't feel as though you ought to pick a universally acclaimed cinematic heavyweight such as perennial poll-topper Citizen Kane. Your personal favourites don't have to be masterpieces – you may want to nominate the slushy romances that never fail to cheer you up, the vintage horror movies that have haunted you since childhood, or the comedies that make you laugh the hardest.

In fact, many movies that are now acknowledged classics originally met with critical hostility and audience indifference. What is usually considered the finest feel-good film of all time, the warm and whimsical Christmas favourite It's a Wonderful Life, fared badly at the box office and garnered lukewarm reviews before capturing the hearts of millions of viewers on its transition to television. Psycho, Alfred Hitchcock's masterful, deviously plotted exercise in suspense, was panned by many critics back in 1960, while one of cinema's highest grossers, the 1980 chaotic car chase comedy The Blues Brothers, was a huge flop on its first release.

The choice is entirely up to you and all selections will be taken into account. Cinema is rich with unforgettable sights and sounds and there's a wealth of magical moments to choose from. Who can forget the outrageous dance numbers in 42nd Street, the chariot race in Ben-Hur or the unflinching opening moments of Steven Spielberg's harrowing war epic Saving Private Ryan? How about the sensory assault of the 'stargate' sequence in 2001: A Space Odyssey, the shower scene in the aforementioned Psycho or the heartbreaking climax of Titanic?

Whether your number one choice is Singin' in the Rain or Silence of the Lambs, Reservoir Dogs or The Truth about Cats and Dogs, High Noon or High Society, register your vote and take part in Britain's movie event of the century.



Movie magic: just a few of the memorable films that might make the Millennium Movies list. (Clockwise, from top) 'Titanic', 'The Lion King', Charlie Chaplin in 'The Kid', 'Gone with the Wind', 'Star Wars' and 'The Godfather'

The Walford witch lives on!

While actress Michelle Collins was glad to see the back of superbitch Cindy Beale and her 'dodgy haircuts', UK Gold viewers still love to sneer at her appalling antics on the EastEnders reruns. Interview: Sue Malins

LAST year Cindy Beale, the wicked witch of Walford, was finally killed off after almost 10 years of wreaking havoc in Albert Square.

It's a decade that actress Michelle Collins says she looks back on with a mixture of affection – and horror.

'Without a doubt, EastEnders was great for me,' says Michelle, 35. 'I had a wonderful time there, learned a lot and made some good friends.

'But when I watch old episodes on UK Gold it's horrifying to see how dreadful I looked over the years.

'A lot of the time I looked absolutely hideous! I've been really fat, really thin, and worn some appalling clothes. And all those dodgy haircuts I had. It makes me cringe!'

Michelle has recently returned to BBC1 playing a travel rep in the Cyprus-based drama series, Sunburn. She plays the part of a thoroughly nice and normal young woman and says it's a welcome change from Cindy.

'She was such a bitch, wasn't she? Yet, it's amazing how much people still like her especially after all she got up to – all those different fellas and affairs.

'People always expected me to be like Cindy, which was very wearing. But I'm nothing like her at all. I'm really quite a nice person!

'In one way I'm glad not to be in Cindy's shadow any more, but she was a brilliant character to play.'

Michelle arrived in Albert Square in 1988 as the girlfriend of Simon Wicks, Ian's half-brother. 'I went in just to do 11 episodes originally but I kept having my stay extended.

'They tried me out all over the place. I was in the cafe and behind the bar in the Queen Vic for a while but I was quickly moved out of there because I was completely cack-handed. I kept smashing the glasses!

'I virtually grew up on the show. So much has happened to me since I joined. I bought my first flat when I went into it, I have had a baby. My life has changed enormously. Leaving felt like the end of an era for me.'

This is the second time that Michelle has left EastEnders. But this time round there's no going back. Cindy is now officially dead and buried, after dying in childbirth while serving time in jail for the attempted murder of husband Ian.

'I looked hideous!' says Michelle Collins of her time on 'EastEnders'. 'And all those dodgy haircuts. It makes me cringe!'

Michelle reveals that the EastEnders bosses had tried to persuade her to return one more time.

'They wanted me to go back and set up a new life in The Square and they said if I didn't go back things would have to be finished one way or the other so that Ian's character could make a clean break.

Michelle is much more confident about leaving the safety of a soap this time round.

'I was a bit nervous at the start. Now that I've "died" I can't go back and that's a bit scary.

'But so far it's working out really well. When I finish Sunburn I'll be doing a second series of Real Women and I have other projects in the pipeline. I'm starting to feel very confident about the future.'

Michelle was away in Cyprus working on Sunburn when her TV death took place.

'I'm sure if I hadn't been working it would have been very depressing to see my funeral', she says. 'I know I would have had a lump in my throat!

'It was quite flattering that it created so much sadness even though I wasn't there.

'Ten years is a long time in anyone's life and I will miss Cindy. But at least she'll still be around for a long time on UK Gold and that is really rather comforting.'

History

The appalling saga of human conflict is explored in Discovery Channel's new series 'War and Civilization'. Neil Murray examines the evolution of warfare

NEW SERIES

Discovery Channel

War and Civilization
from Sunday 7th 9.00pm

From early firearms (inset) to the sophisticated equipment of the Gulf War (main picture), technology has always played a key part in changing the face of warfare

JUDGING by recent headlines, you'd think that biological warfare was a fairly recent, evil development of modern conflict. Yet if you turn back the clock to ancient Roman times you'll find there were rancid animal carcasses flying through the air, catapulted by scheming soldiers into besieged towns to tempt the starving inhabitants.

Once they landed, the carcasses were devoured by hungry locals, and, before long, an epidemic had swept the town and the battle was won.

Germ warfare isn't the only thing to last all the way from Roman history. Under fire, Roman soldiers used to protect themselves from missiles by forming a protective roof over their heads with their shields, a method not unfamiliar to riot police today.

And the world's most famous race, the marathon, goes back even further, taking its name from the Battle of Marathon in 490BC, when a Greek soldier set off on a legendary run of around 42km (just over 26 miles) to warn Athens that the Persians were closing in.

These are just some of the facts from the absorbing new eight-hour series War and Civilization that starts on Discovery Channel this month.

Filmed over two years in 15 countries, the series covers 5,000 years of conflict and is based on the work of well-known military historian John Keegan, whose books include The History of Warfare, The Face of Battle and The Mask of Command. He is also the series consultant.

'War is probably about 5,000 years old,' he explains. 'Originally not a particularly lethal activity, it has become, since the beginning of this century, an activity that has threatened to bring civilisation to an end.'

Explaining war's origins, Keegan says: 'War began where hunters discovered that settled people were easy meat, a form of prey themselves; they had things that were valuable.'

Greek farmers called Hoplites were responsible for the modern way of war with their approach to battle.

'The Greeks developed a new style of war which was formal, decisive and deadly – the western way of war.'

The opening episode, which covers early Greek battles, also takes a look at Alexander the Great, who was not, says Keegan, 'the sort of person to go drinking with on a Saturday night'.

'It was at a drinking session that he killed one of his closest friends with a spear through the chest because he had said something he didn't like.'

Producer Bruce Eadie says, 'I was impressed by what Alexander managed to do – the extent of his empire and the extraordinary way he took an army from a tiny country, Macedonia, to the borders of India and kept it on the road for ten years. It's mind-boggling.'

The statistics that come out of the series give food for thought. In the 20th century, for example, more than 100 million people have been killed because of war, more than the total dead in all wars since the beginning of recorded history.

For a thousand years, the horse was the mainstay of world conflicts, carrying Muslim armies to conquer Spain, being loaded on to Viking longships and helping Samurai warriors dominate Japanese battlefields.

Later, as guns were loaded on to ships, armies could take their warfare to far-flung foreign fields and Europeans dominated the world.

By the 17th and 18th centuries, revolution saw the body count rise with a quantity of victims unseen in previous wars. The movement of troops by trains, telegraph messages and rapid-fire weapons also added to the carnage.

From tank and plane, to the advent of nuclear weapons, the series traces the history of the two World Wars, the Cold War, Korea and Vietnam.

But, John Keegan argues, war may now be too costly, in economic and human terms, to be fought on the scale seen previously in this century.

Great armies, it would seem, are now the peacekeepers of the world.

Eadie concludes: 'The series ends on an upbeat note in that John thinks war has come to an end and will fade away. I didn't come out of the series feeling that. I just think it's something that seems to be perennial.'

and mystery

The weird and wonderful are the focus of UK Horizons' new series 'Supernatural Science'. Words: Pauline McLeod

AS THE delightfully eccentric Robert Eagle rattles on enthusiastically, you can't help but wonder if he's right in the head. I mean would you personally volunteer to test the theory that humans can walk barefoot through fire without getting burnt?

But then it's Robert's child-like curiosity in the inexplicable that makes UK Horizons' 13-part Supernatural Science – of which he is series producer – riveting and compelling viewing.

Fifteen months in the making and dedicated to exploring the myths around paranormal phenomena, it is not simply for anoraks of subjects such as levitation, ESP and spontaneous human combustion.

Take episode one, Buried Alive, which looks at the Haitian belief in zombies – corpses that have been brought back to life.

'The film,' says Robert, 'is an interesting story.' Shot in a country where tales of zombies are still popular, it suggests that the answer may lie with a deadly poison secreted by the puffer fish. This has a paralysing effect and is claimed to be an ingredient of the potions made by magicians to make their victims appear as if they are dead. The poison, by the way, is now being developed as an anaesthetic.

'We found a zombie called Basil. Teaming up with a Haitian doctor and using a DNA test, we set out to discover whether he was related to the woman who claimed that he was her son who'd died a year earlier.

'He isn't related to her at all.

'Did we go back to tell him? Well, actually we left that to the Haitian doctor. He knows the culture and we'd been interfering enough already.'

And the secret behind the Indian rope trick? 'We happily expose the chap who makes out he's floating guru-like in the air because that's a fraud,' says Robert. 'But the rope trick is an old one which has recently been revived after a lot of research. If I gave the game away it would be like saying to Paul Daniels, "This is how you do it."'

NEW SERIES

UK Horizons

Supernatural Science from Monday 8th 9.00pm

Peter Cushing plays a zombie, Hollywood style, but the evidence suggests something quite different

A producer on Channel 4's Equinox and the BBC's QED series, Robert adds: 'Supernatural explanations often don't hold up. But you do discover a lot about human psychology and what the human body can do from studying phenomena.'

Having hauled himself over red hot coals in the name of science, he says helpfully: 'I have very weedy feet. A lot of people in India walk barefoot, so their skin is a bit tougher. But if everyone is rooting for you, you do feel buoyed up to do it.

'The cameraman and I did it twice. Our feet didn't burn but we did want to put them straight into a bucket of cold water afterwards.'

Among the other 'supernatural' subjects tackled in the series are perennial favourites: the Loch Ness Monster, weeping madonnas, the Bermuda triangle, near-death experiences and psychic healing.

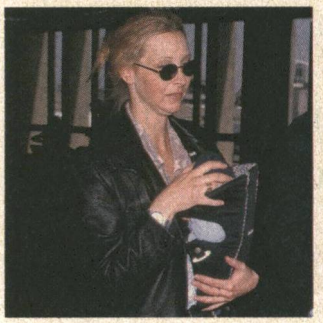
The weaning power of Lisa!



Getting to grips with motherhood – Lisa Kudrow cradles her new baby

She's had a beautiful baby boy in real life and triplets in Friends. Now Lisa Kudrow is nurturing her movie career. Words: Daphne Lockyer

Sky One

Friends
Thursdays 9.00pm

RUMOUR has it that episodes of the current series of Friends have taken a little longer than usual to film. Blame the most recent addition to the 'family' if you like. One Julian Murray Stern.

Though not actually a cast member as such, he and his mother Lisa Kudrow (Phoebe Buffay) come very much as a joint item. In other words, she brings the baby on set with her every day. 'Well I didn't have him to leave him at home,' she says. 'And besides, the others wouldn't like it if I did.'

It's clear that Julian's distracted 'aunts' and 'uncles' would rather play with him than act for the cameras. 'We're just so relieved it turned out to be a baby,' jokes Matthew Perry, who plays Chandler in the series. 'We all just thought Lisa was getting very fat.'

A little rounded, perhaps – but not nearly as huge as Phoebe, who agreed to be a surrogate mother for her brother Frank and sister-in-law Alice, and was gestating triplets for most of the last series. 'So I was an already pregnant woman who needed padding. Can you believe that?' she laughs. 'It could only happen to Phoebe.'

Though Julian was delivered on 7 May last year, it was not until episode two of the current series that the triplets – two girls and a boy – were finally born.

'Phoebe wonders if Frank and Alice will let her keep one, which shows that giving up the babies is a little harder than she'd expected. But she's thought it through and really she's come to terms with it. I think a woman who's prepared to give up her babies is incredibly noble. It's the greatest gift you can give to another human being. When surrogacy works like that it's an amazing thing to do. Though, obviously, right now, I couldn't personally imagine it.'

Lisa married Frenchman Michel Stern, a Los Angeles advertising executive, in 1995. They first met ten years ago when Michel was dating Lisa's room mate. At the time he barely seemed to notice her, though Lisa was instantly attracted to him. Then six years later they met again and the feeling was mutual. 'There was something great between us,' Lisa says.

Michel was present at Julian's birth as was Lisa's mother, Nedra. It was, Lisa says, a huge help during a difficult process. 'No one tells you how hard it's going to be because they don't want to scare you. I think it would be better to have a little warning,' she says.

At the moment Lisa and her baby are inseparable. When Julian was just weeks old, she took him to New York with her when she was filming Analyze This, a new film in which she stars alongside Billy Crystal and Robert De Niro.

In the movie, De Niro plays a gangster who visits a psychiatrist played by Crystal. Lisa is Crystal's love interest.

'Obviously I wanted to do the part, but I was nervous about taking my baby because I don't think there's any such thing as fresh air in New York. But everyone that I trust said that it would be okay and fortunately they were right. It was a very happy experience.'

It's not the only film project that 35-year-old Lisa has recently been involved in. Last month saw the cinema release of The Opposite of Sex, a humorous story of sexual manners that focuses on both gay and heterosexual relationships. She plays the rather repressed Lucia, who falls in love with the local sheriff, played by Lyle Lovett.

'It was fun making out with him,' she says. 'But mostly I loved playing Lucia because she's so different to Phoebe. In fact, they'd probably hate each other.

'Unlike Phoebe, Lucia is quite cynical and untrusting. She's resisting, resisting, resisting. And it's only when she lets go that her life really begins.'

Lisa herself can relate to the character in some ways. 'Most of the characters that I play aren't particularly overt. Phoebe is kind of ditzy. But she isn't a sexy dumb blonde, in the Marilyn Monroe mould. That wouldn't come naturally to me.'

Lisa turned down a promising career in medicine (she has a degree in biology) to follow her acting ambitions and guest roles on American sitcoms such as Cheers and Mad about You followed. But it was playing Phoebe in Friends that won her starring roles in the films Clockwatcher and Romy and Michele's High School Reunion (which premieres on Sky MovieMax on Friday 26th).

Despite her blossoming movie career, she can never imagine a time when she wouldn't want to be part of the Friends cast.

'Why would someone want to leave such a great show?' she asks. And she's hugely underwhelmed by suggestions that the show could be losing its spark.

'I think the characters are growing and developing all the time,' she says. 'I think Phoebe is becoming more like me. Every now and then I catch her saying something that sounds quite reasonable and focused. Sometimes I even hear a little sarcasm creeping in and I think, "Oh, that's me, isn't it?"'

She's not keen to discuss when, where, if or how the hit show might end. At a recent press conference, indeed, she bristled visibly when a journalist suggested there might ultimately be a tragic finale for the friends.

'What, like we all end up in a big fire and, you know, get horribly burned to death? That would be great,' she said, sounding like Phoebe. Phoebe at her sarcastic best, that is.

MY MOST MEMORABLE RACE

GRAHAM BELL Eurosport presenter

World Cup slalom, Kranjska Gora, Slovenia, 6 January 1999

'This was a World Cup slalom race and a huge crowd had turned up to see local hero Jure Kosir, who had only ever won one World Cup race. Kosir had a good first run, leading the Austrian Thomas Stangassinger by half a second. In the second run the top 30 skiers ski in reverse order, so Kosir would be last. Eventually, it came to Stangassinger's run and, sure enough, he went into the lead. So then it was Kosir. Now, apart from anything, Kosir is a good friend of mine. He's a great guy and he often helps out in the Eurosport commentary box. I was nervous for him and very aware that most people in Slovenia watch the English version of Eurosport, too – I think I was more nervous than when I was actually out there racing myself. I also knew that Kosir has this habit of crashing out when the pressure is on. Anyway, he started his run and, at the third gate he nearly fell. From then on I lost it. I was just like a fan yelling, "Come on, Jure." But he made it, winning by half a second and sending the 5000-strong crowd mad. Unfortunately, we missed the party that evening because we had to move on to the next race in Austria – but I bet it was quite a night!'

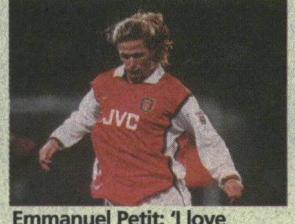
MATCH OF THE MONTH by Nick Callow

England v France Sky Sports 2 Wednesday 10th 7.00pm – LIVE

EMMANUEL PETIT'S Arsenal teammates bowed at his feet when he returned to London at the start of the season as a World Cup winner. The French midfielder may have helped them win the League and FA Cup double last season, but the Arsenal players felt they were now not worthy to be in the same company as a man who had scored against Brazil in a World Cup Final.

'They all wanted to see my medal,' Petit recalls. 'But they know nothing has changed. There has been an incredible reaction to our success in France but I am still the same person.'



Emmanuel Petit: 'I love playing for my country but I also owe a lot to Arsenal.'

Petit is preparing to step out again for his country and take on some of those awed Arsenal players when France face England in this month's high-profile friendly.

Petit, who hopes to be joined in the French side by fellow Gunners Patrick Vieira and Nicolas Anelka, could also find himself up against Arsenal team mates Tony Adams, goalkeeper David Seaman, midfielder Ray Parlour and defender Martin Keown.

'There have already been some jokes at the training ground but you forget all of those things once the match gets going.

'I love playing for my country but I also owe a lot to Arsenal.'

There may be a few in-house scores to settle, though, as Petit and his fellow Arsenal men attempt to turn England v France into a private battle.

SCOTLAND ARE DALLAGLIO'S FIRST TEST IN WORLD CUP YEAR

Chris Hatherall talks to England rugby captain Lawrence Dallaglio

England v Scotland Sky Sports 2 Saturday 20th 1.30pm – LIVE

ENGLAND rugby captain Lawrence Dallaglio believes his team can re-emerge as a world force during the Five Nations championship. England have been going through a transitional period since the retirement of Will Carling and have had their share of criticism. They were pilloried during the tour down under last summer, when they failed to win a game and were pummelled by Australia and New Zealand.

But that side was virtually a reserve outfit and much pride was restored by the winter's epic win against South Africa. Dallaglio says facing the Scots and the French at Twickenham will be important tests of England's progress.

'We have a lot to prove but we are relishing it,' he said. 'There's no doubt the southern hemisphere tour didn't create the most ideal experiences to build on. But it's great we have the squad back together now. I think we have a very competitive squad and the Five Nations is our first target. We realise we have a long way to go but everyone is looking forward to the World Cup and we are growing as a team. The main damage done on last year's tour was that we weren't able to win a game.

But I think a lot of players did themselves no harm at all and a lot of the younger players will have learned a lot from that tour. It's not as damning as people make out. Life is about experiences and people will have benefited from that experience. I think we will prove that in the Five Nations.'

Dallaglio believes that having Scotland and France at home this year will make a major difference to their chances of winning a grand slam. He said: 'Scotland are traditionally a strong rugby nation and that's still the case. They have the capability of performing well in the Five Nations. Playing England is a big fixture for them and they will be as determined as ever to beat us. History suggests they have the capability to do that.

'I'm pleased we have them at home – and the same goes for France. They are very strong. Having won back-to-back grand slams, they'll go into the tournament as favourites but we'll be very close.'

The Five Nations will have an extra edge to it this year, because it comes during the build-up to the World Cup. But Dallaglio insists it won't detract from the quality of the matches. He said: 'Going into the World Cup it's important you save your best rugby for the tournament but that won't affect our ambition. If England can win a grand slam it would leave us tremendously confident.

'There were times during the World Cup when we played as impressive rugby as anyone in the world, but we didn't do it for 80 minutes. Starting with the Five Nations, we will be looking for a more complete and sustained performance in terms of quality. We have played quality rugby in the past but it's only been in little bits. Now we have to put it all together.'

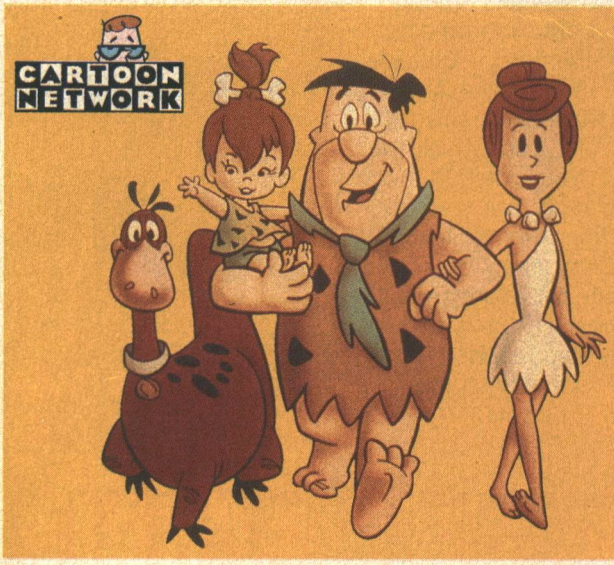
CABLE GUIDE
CABLE TV AWARDS 1999

WHO ARE YOUR FAVOURITES?

The Cable Guide Cable TV Awards for 1999 are happening in March and we want you to have your say! You could win great goody bags containing loads of fab stuff from your favourite kids cable channels – just by telling us what you like on cable TV. From Johnny Bravo to Jumanji, Ace Ventura, Saved by the Bell and those cute little 101 Dalmatians, you'll find all the best kids' programmes on cable – so why not shout about it!

All you have to do is think about what you've watched and loved on cable in the past year, then fill in the voting form over the page. You'll be entered into the prize draw and the first 50 forms drawn out will win one of the goody bags. Don't forget to get your entry in by the closing date of 8 March 1999.

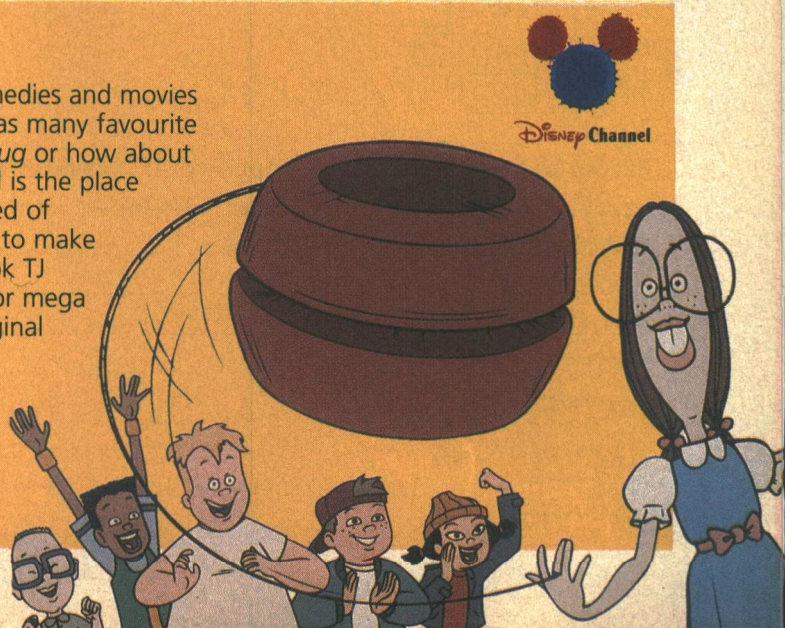


CARTOON NETWORK

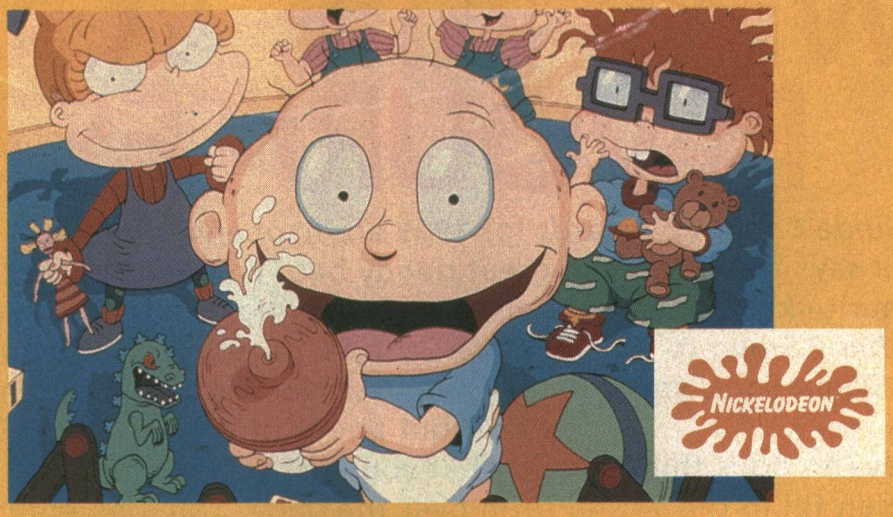
It's time to 'vote, vote, vote' for your favourite cartoon character and there is only one place to look – the UK's favourite cable and satellite channel, Cartoon Network, home of the top toon stars. Choose from our very own 'Cartoon CARTOON' stars Johnny Bravo, The Powerpuff Girls, Ed, Edd, 'n' Eddy, Dexter and Dee Dee, I am Weasel and Cow and Chicken, together with established favourites Tom and Jerry, Scooby Doo, The Flintstones, Batman, Animaniacs, Freakazoid, Bugs Bunny, Taz, Road Runner, Wile E Coyote and Daffy Duck. And for our 'tiny toon' fans, there is a selection of pre-school favourites including Thomas the Tank Engine, Tabaluga and The Magic Roundabout. When it comes to voting for the number one kid's channel, there can be only one choice, Cartoon Network. Where else can you find non-stop, top toon entertainment, seven days a week!

DISNEY CHANNEL

Disney Channel is the place to be for fun-filled 'toons, comedies and movies galore, all wrapped up in Disney magic. Disney Channel has many favourite cartoon characters – there is the Recess gang, Disney's Doug or how about the kooky Pepper Ann or hunky Hercules? Disney Channel is the place if you like to laugh – check out the Taylors in constant need of Home Improvement, or Cory and his pals as they struggle to make sense of it all in Boy Meets World. And who could overlook TJ Henderson, the Smart Guy. Disney Channel is the home for mega movies, like 101 Dalmatians (both the live action AND original versions), Cinderella (with Brandy, Whitney Houston and Whoopie Goldberg) and Jungle 2 Jungle? Disney Channel has the besy in pre-school programmes, like Sesame Street, The New Adventures of Winnie the Pooh, Rosie and Jim and many other favourites.
How can one channel pack in so many quality treats? Only Disney knows the answer.



CABLE GUIDE CABLE TV AWARDS 1999



NICKELODEON

Is your 'Favourite Cartoon Character' on Nicktoons TV? It's just the place to find the liveliest cartoon characters around. Angelica Pickles for instance – she's every baby's nightmare in the Rugrats. And, don't forget the rest of the gang – Chuckie, Phil and Lil, and their leader Tommy, too! What about Arnold? The cool star of Hey Arnold with a head shaped like a rugby ball. Maybe those Angry Beavers Norbert and Daggett, or the two-headed cartoon character CatDog get your vote? In the 'Favourite Pre-School TV for Under 5s' category, our younger viewers could put a 'pawprint' on the voting form for Nickelodeon for bringing you great shows like Blue's Clues, the Magic School Bus and Budgie the Little Helicopter. Finally, Nickelodeon has got to be your 'Favourite Children's Channel' choice with funky shows like Kenan & Kel, Sister Sister, Moesha, Sabrina the Teenage Witch, and the worst five-a-side football team in history, The Renford Rejects!

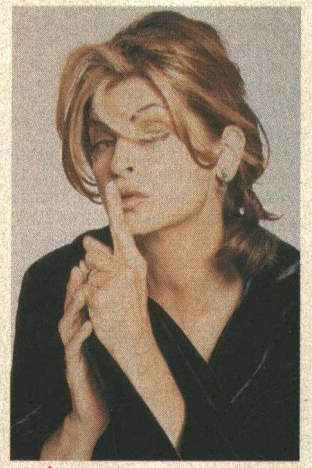
SECTION 1 MONDAY 1ST FEBRUARY – FRIDAY 5TH FEBRUARY

ACTION JACKSON

The world's leading athletes take cover in Budapest this Friday to compete in the eagerly anticipated IAAF Hungarian Indoor Grand Prix, one of the biggest and most exciting indoor meetings of the season. Britain's brightest hope is Colin Jackson (pictured). The Welsh-born 110m hurdles world record holder is certainly built for speed and competes on the opening day in the 60m and 60m hurdles events. Friday's other highlights include 200m, 400m and 3000m hurdles and the pole vault, all in both the men's and women's categories.
Eurosport Friday 5th 7.00pm – LIVE

BACK IN THE CLOSET



Though it's only into its second season, the US sitcom Veronica's Closet has gained phenomenal viewing figures Stateside, thanks to the pedigree of the cast and the sabre-sharp wit of the scripts. The comic complications of the stories are brilliantly observed, as you might expect from Kevin S Bright, Marta Kauffman and David Crane, the creative force behind Friends. The show benefits from the charismatic presence of Kirstie Alley. She manages to work great grit as well as a sense of sympathy into the character of Veronica 'Ronnie' Chase, who might be successful in selling romance as the owner of the lingerie stockist of the title, but is unlucky in love herself. In this week's episode, a scandal sheet reports that Ronnie is having an affair with her new business partner, Alec.
Sky One Thursday 4th 10.30pm

GOOD GREEK! IT'S HERCULES

One of Disney's most enjoyable animated adventures, 1997's Hercules, has made the successful transition to the small screen in Hercules: The TV Show. This 65-part epic has lost none of its stunning scope in its relocation and benefits from the vocal talents of an all-star Hollywood cast, including Tate Donovan as the mythical muscle man of the title, James Woods and the flamboyant Sandra Bernhard. In Wednesday's episode, intense actress Jennifer Jason Leigh (whose impressive CV includes Single White Female and Dolores Claibourne) enters into the comic spirit of the sword-and-sandal series to voice the part of Tempest, a damsel in distress who summons a primitive form of Girl Power to tell Hercules that it would be an insult if he attempted to save her. In Friday's instalment, meanwhile, former Monty Python star Eric Idle provides the voice of Hercules's high school principal, who teams up with our hero to battle the evil Anteus.

Sensational ★★★ Stimulating ★★ Satisfactory ★

Aries
(21 March-20 April) ★★
The enlightened planet Saturn has taught you some tough lessons these past two years, but its reign is almost over. Soon, jaunty Jupiter sweeps into your sign, bringing with it chance encounters, lucky breaks and golden opportunities.

Taurus
(21 April-21 May) ★★
Be careful what you wish for this month as your judgement is likely to be clouded. You may believe you can achieve the impossible, but the truth is you may be inclined to make some inappropriate financial and emotional choices.

Gemini
(22 May-21 June) ★★
A heart-to-heart talk with a loved one mid-month will help clear the air. Your sign tends to avoid emotional issues, but with Jupiter moving into your communication zone, you'll confront problems head on.

Cancer
(22 June-23 July) ★★★
Jupiter acts as inspiration and helps you live up to your true potential. If you're in the market for a new job, romance or luxury purchase, luck is firmly on your side. Make yourself highly visible and exploit all your opportunities.

Leo
(24 July-23 August) ★★★
As sombre Saturn withdraws from the peak of your chart, light-hearted Jupiter quickly takes its place. Expect a whole new world to open up in the months ahead as destiny connects you with the right people at the right time.

Virgo
(24 August-23 September) ★★
Sensuous Venus enters your marriage house this month, rekindling romance and adding a touch of elegance to your lifestyle. Some of you may meet a charismatic newcomer, while others go on a spending spree to brighten up their world.

Libra
(24 September-23 October) ★★
Some sort of restriction will be lifted, thanks to positive input from freedom-loving Jupiter. By mid-March, you'll either change your living arrangements or launch a new venture. But you must balance enthusiasm with commonsense.

Scorpio
(24 October-22 November) ★★
Mars heightens your awareness and gives you a decisive edge over others. Use the energy wisely this month and you'll make a big impact. But abuse your powers and you'll run into trouble with a male relative or friend.

Sagittarius
(23 November-22 December) ★★
Your stars suggest improved communication and greater harmony on the homefront. You sometimes have a wicked way of dealing with your loved ones, but you'll be in a kinder mood this month and relationships are bound to improve.

Capricorn
(23 December-20 January) ★★
Some of you may profit through the generosity or good fortune of loved ones, while others capitalise on one of their hidden talents. This month marks the end of a long-running financial or emotional dispute for many Capricorns.

Aquarius
(21 January-19 February) ★★★
The period around your birthday is full of promise and anticipation. Some of you may enjoy idyllic moments with loved ones at this time. Others can expect improvement in their health and a renewed sense of well-being.

Pisces
(20 February-20 March) ★★★
Venus conjures up romantic and fanciful thoughts, while Mercury in your sign gives you the gift of good communication. This combination sets the scene for a month you'll never forget and a year of great promise.

SECTION 2 SATURDAY 6TH FEBRUARY – FRIDAY 12TH FEBRUARY

A SWINGING AFFAIR

In the Sky Movies Exclusive presentation The Rat Pack, a nostalgic look at the showbiz clique comprised of Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr, Peter Lawford and Joey Bishop, director Rob Cohen skilfully evokes the sophistication of the American entertainment industry of the Fifties and Sixties. The film's real triumph, though, lies in its casting: as Dean Martin, Joe Mantegna is all hipster swagger and world-weary wisecracks; Don Cheadle contributes a moving impersonation of Sammy Davis Jr; while Angus McFadyen provides comic relief as a bumbling Peter Lawford. But the film is dominated by Ray Liotta's compassionate, finely shaded character study of Sinatra. This intense actor doesn't seem daunted by the task of impersonating the legendary star. He may not bear a striking resemblance to the Chairman of the Board of Showbusiness but his persuasive portrayal, with its accumulation of keenly observed mannerisms, as well as the shots of him bathed in heroic halos of light on stage, summons much of Sinatra's iconic authority.

BLONDE AMBITION

Erstwhile Baywatch bombshell and Barb Wire star Pamela Anderson further hones her action heroine credentials in Sky One's slickly assembled new series VIP, in which she plays a hot-dog vendor who, through a quirk of fate, becomes the head of a bodyguard agency. The show boasts more than its fair share of thrills, spills and intrigue and Pamela, who co-produces the series, draws on her largely untapped talent for light comedy to buoy up the proceedings.

Sky One Saturday 6th 7.00pm

A BATTERING BY THE RAMS?

Struggling Merseysiders Everton pay a visit to Pride Park this Sunday to take on a dangerous-looking Derby County. The home side play an aggressive game, spearheaded by the belligerent attack of Costa Rican striker Paolo Wanchope (pictured) that can be dangerously effective. Their upfront play is raw and unadorned and opponents are often fooled into forgetting that the Rams boast one of the tightest defences in the top league, bolstered by the powerful Argentinian Horacio Carbonari. But while the visitors struggled to find consistent form in the run up to Christmas, they deserve credit for the boldness and intelligence with which they have adapted their game since the loss of star striker Duncan Ferguson, who left last year to bolster the offence of Ruud Gullit's Newcastle. Deprived of the towering Scot's celebrated aerial agility, the Toffees have opted for low, hard play, placing greater emphasis on the menacing movement of 19-year-old dynamo Danny Cadamarteri. They may not be the favourites to win, but if Cadamarteri or Ivory Coast international Ibrahim Bakayoko are firing on all cylinders, an upset could occur.

The resolution: "I used Gymbody daily for 40 minutes..."

The result: "...3 weeks later I had a six-pack"

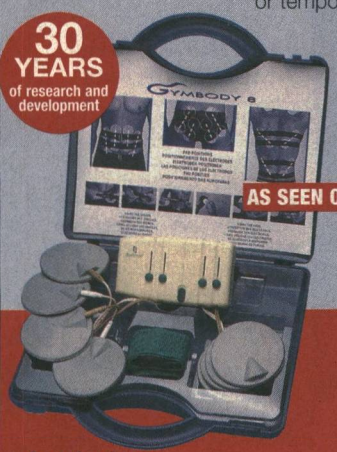
FHM MAGAZINE

Why wait?

If you want a toned stomach fast, there's no substitute for a Gymbody in your New Year fitness programme. In just 3 weeks, this revolutionary exerciser can give you washboard abs you'll be proud to bare. Because in only 40 minutes, it contracts and relaxes your muscles 240 times – just like sit ups. How can you go wrong?

Proven exercise technique

It's all done with EMS.* – a medically-proven technique, developed over 30 years, which imitates the body's own natural exercise process. Trusted by physios, premier league footballers, other professional sportsmen and even NASA astronauts, EMS makes your muscles contract and relax automatically, so that every workout is safe, even when you're out of condition or temporarily out of action.



Whenever, wherever you choose

To see those muscles working, position the EMS pads on your stomach, fix the battery-operated control unit round your waist and switch on. You can adjust the strength of each muscle contraction to warm up, reach a peak then cool down, giving you infinite control over your workout. And because Gymbody is compact, portable and invisible under casual gear, you're free to exercise anywhere you choose. Even when you're busy doing other things.

Results that count

Used daily for just 3 weeks, you'll see a real improvement in muscle tone and definition. We're so confident that Gymbody will work for you, we offer a full money-back refund if you're not impressed with the results within 30 days.

Easy payment

For less than the cost of gym membership, we promise a body worth getting your shirt off for. Payment can be made in 3 easy instalments – first payment only £40 and then 2 further monthly payments of just £38 (including postage and packing).†

So why wait? To try the Gymbody without commitment, post the order form below or call now on 0345 69 72 78.

You can also choose to make extra repayments at any time, without penalty. And at the end of every month, we issue a detailed statement to give you an up-to date balance on your cash reserve.

ART ATTACK

Art connoisseurs will be by turns delighted, shocked and infuriated at The Arena 100, UK Arena's specially commissioned six-month series that sets out to provoke debate with its opinionated and insightful celebrations of the best of 20th-century British art. The series casts its critical net extremely wide and among its top 100 subjects are the confrontational installations of Damien Hirst, as well as such design classics as the London Underground map and the red telephone box.

THE DEVIL IN DISGUISE

When director-producer Alan J Pakula was killed in a car accident last November, Hollywood was robbed of one of its finest talents. He demonstrated a great versatility and intelligence behind the lens and always excelled in any genre to which he applied himself. His films include The Parallax View, a pungently paranoid conspiracy thriller from 1974, the harrowing holocaust-themed drama Sophie's Choice and this week's premiere of The Devil's Own, his last completed project. With a sensitive but committed IRA man at its centre, this film was always going to be controversial. Loyalty, deception and betrayal are its key themes and Pakula explores them with skill. Brad Pitt adopts a spot-on Belfast accent to play a Republican terrorist who flees to New York to purchase missiles. Under the false name of Rory Devaney, he stays at the house of Tom O'Meara (Harrison Ford), an Irish-American cop who is unaware of Rory's links to the IRA. The two men bond but Rory's true identity is soon revealed and he is forced to go on the run. So begins Tom's obsessive search for the terrorist he once believed was his friend. Rory is a troubling part, but Pitt draws upon his sharp sense of characterisation to make him human. Similarly, Ford condenses a rich range into his role. The film has a plaintive tone but also offers plenty of scope for action, which Pakula seizes upon with relish. Ultimately, The Devil's Own is a worthy testament to the late director's artistry.

TOP COTTEE

Fearless Division One battlers Sunderland take a break from their intense promotion campaign to entertain Leicester City in this Worthington Cup clash. It's the second leg of the semi-final and the Wearsiders, who have topped the table for much of the season, will be bringing their typical verve and drive to the match. The Foxes, meanwhile, have been struggling to rise above the mid-table mark of the top league, but star strikers Emile Heskey and Tony Cottee (pictured) have recently found incredible form. The home side are capable of playing Premiership-calibre football, though, so it would be dangerous for their opponents to approach the game with complacency.

SECTION 4 SATURDAY 20TH FEBRUARY – SUNDAY 28TH FEBRUARY

THE IZZARD KING

Eddie Izzard, the cross-dressing master of sweetly surreal stand-up, is in a comedy class all by himself. On a good night, his exhilarating flights of fantasy – during which he somehow succeeds in weaving Old Testament dogs with big beards, talking house dust, The X-Files and God himself (as played by James Mason) into his nutty narratives – approach genius. The UK Arena documentary Eddie Izzard – Je Suis a Stand Up celebrates his unique talents with appropriate reverence. It tags after the mirth monger (who flexed his acting muscles in the recent big screen update of The Avengers and the Glam Rock tribute Velvet Goldmine) as he embarks on a world tour and boasts priceless footage of the Eurocentric Izzard bravely translating his absurdist routines into French for the benefit of a bemused Paris nightclub audience.

UK Arena Saturday 20th 8.00pm

HIGHWAY TO HELL

In his darkly malevolent mood piece The Lost Highway, director David Lynch pins down in startling cinematic terms something of the delirium of a fever dream. The film throbs with menace and Lynch succeeds in sustaining the threatening atmosphere of the most unsettling passages of his Twin Peaks: Fire Walk with Me – his big screen prequel to the cult TV series – but without the release of that film's wacky comic interludes. And the excellent cast respond to Lynch's phantasmagoric narrative with appropriately cryptic characterisations. The less-is-more performance of Bill Pullman is in keeping with the film's enigmatic tone and Patricia Arquette mesmerises in a dual role. Robert Blake, meanwhile, makes a spooky impression as the Mystery Man – a sort of evil puppet master who may or may not be controlling the film's horrifying events. The monkey puzzle plot starts with jazz musician Pullman being drawn into a disturbing series of events after suspecting his wife, Arquette, of having an affair. But that's just the beginning of a troubling cinematic journey as the surreal situations mount up and characters suddenly change identity without warning. While it occasionally hints at the existence of the everyday world, The Lost Highway exists largely in its own nightmarish never-never land. He may make no concessions to coherence but those who stay the distance on Lynch's hellish highway will be in for an unforgettable ride.

VIVA VILLA!

Championship favourites Aston Villa (whose incredibly productive recent signing Dion Dublin is pictured) descend on Selhurst Park to take on Joe Kinnear's Wimbledon on Sunday. On paper, the south Londoners certainly seem to have their work cut out against a side that has found formidable form, but their deceptively rough-hewn style is effective and often reaps rewards. The Dons thrive on scrappy free-for-alls around the penalty area; their play may not be pretty but it's extremely functional and they have a habit of driving in goals.

NEXT MONTH IN CABLE GUIDE

THE NEW SERIES IS OUT THERE! MULDER AND SCULLY RETURN IN SEASON SIX OF 'THE X-FILES'

WHICH STARS WILL TAKE HOME OSCARS THIS YEAR?

ENGLAND BATTLE IT OUT WITH POLAND

VIEWERS' VIEWS

There's a £5 prize for the best letter!

Sumo fans will be pleased to know that Eurosport is covering the Basho in full

TURNING JAPANESE

BRING back sumo! Apparently Eurosport think five hours of Sumo every couple of months is too much of a good thing. While I have no wish to deprive ice racing fans or tractor-pull aficionados of their delights, I resent such a casual oshidashi (push out). Could you please send Konishiki (aka Dump Truck) round to have a quiet word with them?

Peter Shortell
Cheltenham

Congratulations, Peter, you've won our £5 prize for best letter.

● Eurosport replies: 'You'll be pleased to know, Peter, that our coverage of the Grand Sumo Tournament (Basho) in Tokyo continues this month.'

CAUGHT IN OUR WEB

I JUST thought I'd say thanks for the on-line guide – it's just what I've wanted for ages. It's a fabulous site, too – well thought out and well programmed. Well done.

RESURRECT BUFFY

WHAT is going on, Sky One? You are mad to put Buffy the Vampire Slayer on hold. When I talk to my friends in America and tell them we don't have Buffy on air any more, they just laugh and say thank goodness they live in the States. Please, Sky One, redeem yourself and bring back the show.

STILL NO PLACE FOR MELROSE

EACH time a new Cable Guide is delivered, we open it up, have a quick flick through to see, if, by chance, you will finally put our minds at rest and give us some indication as to what actually happened to the new series of Melrose Place. Come on, Sky One, bring this series back.

● Sky replies: 'We are afraid that Melrose Place will not be returning to Sky One.'

NORMAN'S WISDOM

I THINK Barry Norman rocks! I've learnt that he doesn't just give his opinion when he talks about movies, he makes a statement. He knows when a film has potential or when it's a total failure. I don't go to the cinema now without hearing his advice first.

SABRINA REPEATS ITSELF

I AM sick and tired of repeats of Sabrina the Teenage Witch on Nickelodeon. I like to see old favourites again and again but not again and again and again!

● Nickelodeon replies: 'We will be airing new episodes of Sabrina the Teenage Witch later in the year, although we don't have any definite dates yet.'

THE JOLLY GREEN GIANT

I WOULD like to congratulate Sci-Fi for showing The Incredible Hulk. I can't miss it even for one second. I also visit the channel's Hulk website, which is brilliant.

GOLDEN COMEDY MOMENTS

I'D LIKE to congratulate UK Gold on their stunning Saturday night comedy programmes. I have always been surprised at the number of genuinely jocular programmes shown on the channel. I have never found such a consistent selection before, so I was very frustrated when I heard that UK Gold were planning to alter the line-up. However, this feeling was relieved when I heard that the new line-up was even better than the last.

One reader refuses to see a film unless a rocking Barry Norman gives it the stamp of approval

MAKING BRAIN WAVES

I FELT I had to reply to the letter in last month's Cable Guide from the gentleman who complained about the lack of programmes aimed at people with an 'IQ above 110'. Well, I have an IQ above 140 and a degree in languages but I can find plenty of entertaining programmes on cable. Has this gent never watched Discovery? He should stop trying to impress people and realise that cable caters for everybody. If he can't get satisfaction from watching cable television, he should do the old-fashioned thing – read a book!

SIMPSONS CENSORED?

WHY do Sky One insist on editing episodes of The Simpsons so much? Sky have edited out minor swear words, sentences and scenes because of their content – they have even dropped a whole episode. This is just stupid and childish. People have their own minds and know what they like to watch. The announcer at the start should inform the viewer of its content. The viewer could then decide whether to watch it or not. Please, Sky, rethink this policy.

Alton Nutile
e-mail

● Sky One replies: 'All our programmes have to adhere to ITC guidelines regarding scenes of sex and violence and we felt it would not have been feasible to move The Simpsons, which has a significant following among children, to a late-night spot. However, in our recent 'Too Daring for Daytime' week, we aired a selection of adult-themed Simpsons episodes that we would not have been able to show pre-watershed.'

JUST WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED

CONGRATULATIONS, Disney, for the return of Dr Quinn: Medicine Woman. It was by pure accident that I noticed the programme had shifted from its usual slot to Saturday at 11.00pm and I wondered how many fans missed Dr Quinn's return to work after Kate's birth.

THUNDER'S CRACKING

I WOULD like to thank TNT for their excellent wrestling coverage with WCW Thunder after Nitro on Friday nights. I realise that WCW is not everyone's idea of a great programme but TNT have done a wonderful job of catering for all tastes. I hope that we will be able to see more TNT wrestling during the week or that the channel might show pay-per-view events – that way I won't miss a thing.

SKY HIGH

Thank you, Sky One, for showing two of the best programmes on cable TV. I love watching coverage of World Wrestling Federation clashes at the weekend and South Park is one of the best cartoons around.
